CALPE BEACHES

Calpe, with a Mediterranean climate, enjoys 3,180 hours of sunshine a year, an average annual temperature of 18° and only 44 days a year with clouds, which make it an ideal destination to enjoy contact with the sea. It offers you 13 km of coastline with 14 beaches and coves so that you can choose between kilometers of fine golden sand, quiet bays, small sandy coves or virgin rocky coasts with cliffs, all recognizable by the purity of their clean waters of an unmistakable turquoise blue color.

Arenal-Bol, La Fossa-Levante and Cantal Roig are endless sandy urban beaches where you can take a relaxing walk, or enjoy sports and nautical activities, which put at your disposal a large number of services and facilities.

With more than 5 km of beautiful cliffs, among which those of Peñón de Ifach, Toix and La Manzanera stand out, surrounded by vegetation we find beautiful and quiet coves sculpted by the sea and wind, such as El Penyal, Les Bassetes or El Racó, places magical places where diving, fishing and sailing become unforgettable experiences. Charming unspoilt coves, ideal for losing track of time, diving and fishing with the stunning views of the Sierra de Toix as a backdrop.

SALT FLATS

Calpe's salt flats occupy a depression filled with Quaternary alluvial deposits. The position of the Peñón de Ifach is an important factor in the formation of this interesting humid area. It is a lagoon of tombolic origin produced by the development of a double sandbar.

The excavated pools of the "Baños de la Reina" fish farm are located on the sandbar in the area of Calpe's bay.

Salt was a necessity for food preservation, which Calpe used to market their catch. This shows that the exploitation of Calpe's salt flats began long ago. During the Roman era, its salt production was combined with the fish farm, achieving its greatest splendor in the 2nd century AD.

The salt flats acquired great importance throughout history, eventually supplying over 40 municipalities. Their decline began to be evident at the end of the 18th century, when they became the focus of infections that caused fevers among the population. Later there were various attempts to make them operational again, including by Vicente Buigues, known as "Ti Marguí", who started the modern exploitation of the salt flats, which ended in the late 1980s. In 1993 they were declared a maritime-terrestrial zone.

In the salt flats you can see various birds, one of the most striking being the flamingo, as well as vegetation unique to this peculiar ecosystem.

There is a trail adapted for bird watching, easily accessible and semi-circular

PEÑÓN DE IFACH

The Peñón de Ifach, a symbol of the Costa Blanca, is a 50,000 m² limestone rock that rises 332 m above the sea and is a kilometer long. Connected to the mainland by a narrow isthmus, it is the result of a landslide of the nearby Sierra de Oltà, and is one of the most unique and beautiful landforms on the entire Mediterranean coast.

It is one of the most visited natural parks in the Valencian Community, and a meeting place for scuba divers, climbers and hikers.

Various cultures have been established on the Peñón de Ifach since ancient times. On the western slope there is evidence of an Iberian settlement, which was abandoned during the Roman era and moved to the bottom of the isthmus. There are also indications that the slopes were occupied during the Middle Ages until the inhabitants descended to the town and created a new walled defense system due to attacks by sea. The Peñón de Ifach was also owned by various individuals until 1987, when it finally became the property of the Generalitat Valenciana, which declared it a Natural Park.

ROUTES & WALKS

The route begins near the fishing port, exactly in Cala El Racó, at the foot of the impressive Peñón de Ifach. The Princess of Asturias ecological walk is a wide pedestrian walkway ideal for traveling with children. Together with them we discover the views of the Oltà, Serra Gelada, Puig Campana and Bernia mountains.

At the entrance, a paper stands out that introduces us to it. After this first indication, we continue the route that circulates near the walls of the Peñón de Ifach Natural Park. In 10 'we arrive at an area equipped with a heliport, close to the place where the walk ends and where we let ourselves be seduced by the views of the Mediterranean.

Voramar-Calalga or Bassetes Trail

From the upper part of Calalga cove to Les Bassetes marina, next to Mallorquí cove.

Summary description: The start of the route is at the confluence of Avenida Rosa de los Vientos with Paseo Marítimo Infanta Cristina, the latter area where an information panel and a parking area are located. parallel to Cala Cabalga. In this enclave we find a sign of the PR trail that indicates that in approximately 15 minutes, you can access the port of Les Bassetes. The path, which appears protected with a railing, descends towards the cove. Next, a staircase allows us access to the Mallorquí cove, which also has an information panel. At this point, the path becomes wider.

INTERESTING PLACES BUILDINGS BY RICARDO BOFILL

LA MURALLA ROJA

This building dates back to 1972 and its architecture is adapted to the topography of the cliff where it is located.

The configuration of the building evokes the aesthetics of architecture, going back to the Mediterranean tradition of the kasbah: passages, terraces, staircases and patios that communicate with each other as an extension of the interior living spaces. In addition, it features a wide variety of colors, which was done with the intention of contrasting the landscape, sky and natural light.

XANADÚ

Constructed between 1966 and 1968. Architecturally, it is an experimental prototype of a garden city in space, achieved with various levels and heights connected by ramps and stairs.

The building takes the castle as a reference and is developed in order to obtain an inspired configuration on the Peñón de Ifach.

The overall cubic shape is adorned with railings and curved roofs that make its spaces into something majestic.
